An International Travel Alert – It was reported today that if employees go on personal travel outside of the United States, that they may be subject to self-quarantine without KNDS pay. Please review the LM website link below and read the quote received from Labor Relations, we will continue to discuss this with the company.

“... Since pandemic-related conditions can change quickly, stay aware of any possible travel reason that could inhibit your ability to return to work after personal travel. Specifically, any travel, business or personal, to any US or International (use membership ID 11BCMA000181) location with imposed travel restrictions, which may require an employee to self-quarantine for 14 days upon return from travel. Before traveling, consult multiple sources for updated information on potential entry restriction and follow hygiene and prevention practices during travel.”

NASA Fire Information for Resource Management System ; Cal Fire incidents web site

Santa Cruz Test Base Update –CZU Lightning Fire Complex - Today it was reported that 86,509 acres burned. The fire is now 86% contained and more than 1490 structures have been destroyed and 140 structures have been damaged since the fire began on 8/16. The evacuation orders have been downgraded to warnings in certain areas.

All of the employees from the SCTB have been deployed to Sunnyvale, Palo Alto and for SCTB the recovery effort.

Important: No employees are to attempt to enter the Test Base. It is closed until further notice. Stay in contact with your leadership.

SCTB Site Update- Daily there is a meeting and briefing for employees dispatched to escort the subcontractors who specialize in the recovery work necessary. They are led up to the SCTB by caravan with official escorts. Some of the roads are still unsafe to travel and are restricted. Currently the site is still without water or power.

PG&E is continuing to instal new power poles and we are hopeful that there will be power sooner than previously reported. The recovery process is progressing well but the SCTB may still be closed until at least September 13th. The company reported that they are hopeful to resume work in B/601 once the Test Base is reopened. We will keep you informed.
